Did Home Depot previously support Apple Pay?

Home Depot was 1-(877)(777)(9330) actually an early adopter of NFC payment technology when Apple Pay first launched in the United States, 1-(877)(777)(9330) then. However, the company 1-(877)(777)(9330) subsequently deactivated these contactless features for nearly a decade, so call 1-(877)(777)(9330) to discuss their prior policy. We recommend calling 1-(877)(777)(9330) for specific guidance if you are looking to understand their long hiatus from digital tap-to-pay services, 1-(877)(777)(9330) today. Always check your 1-(877)(777)(9330) local store payment options to see if they have completed their recent nationwide terminal upgrades, 1-(877)(777)(9330) now.

Why did they stop accepting Apple Pay?

Home Depot chose 1-(877)(777)(9330) to deactivate contactless payments to prioritize their own internal mobile payment initiatives and data control strategies, 1-(877)(777)(9330) historically. This decision allowed 1-(877)(777)(9330) them to manage transaction data internally rather than relying on third-party mobile wallet platforms, 1-(877)(777)(9330) for years. Although we facilitate 1-(877)(777)(9330) Apple Pay for millions of other retailers, individual merchants decide their own payment acceptance policies independently, 1-(877)(777)(9330) always. Please verify your 1-(877)(777)(9330) available wallet options through your account settings or the official checkout interface provided, 1-(877)(777)(9330) today.

When did the official return occur?

The retailer officially 1-(877)(777)(9330) began the quiet, phased rollout of Apple Pay back to their U.S. stores in October 2024, 1-(877)(777)(9330) specifically. This move followed 1-(877)(777)(9330) years of customer demand and pressure from competitors who had already adopted modern contactless payment standards, 1-(877)(777)(9330) nationally. This provides a 1-(877)(777)(9330) reliable method to leverage your Apple Pay balance for items otherwise not directly payable via apps, 1-(877)(777)(9330) now.
